

Black-Owned Business to Support in and Around Omaha

There are a variety of ways to support Black community members and businesses during Black History Month. Become an ally by educating yourself on issues facing Black communities. Amplify Black voices. Monetary donations to Black organizations are another great way. Locally, it's just as important to show support, whether that's by donating to ACLU Nebraska, the Urban League of Nebraska, or by visiting the Great Plains Black History Museum.

To help you find a list of businesses you can support, we created the guide below. We know this is not a definitive list, so if we missed one of your favorite Black-owned businesses and organizations in our community, please let us know. While this is a start, we encourage you to continue showing your support to these local business owners.

For more resources, check out Connect Black Omaha's list of Black-owned businesses + grub spots, Black Wall Street Omaha's Facebook page, and Sarah Baker Hansen's blog and her post "A list of Omaha and Lincoln black-owned restaurants for you to support" which highlights local businesses in Lincoln as well.
